

ABSTRACT

- Office equipment are used to display information, such as news items, stock quotes, event announcements, and so on, on a display ordinarily used by the office equipment to provide status as to operation of the office equipment.
- 5 A computing system is in communication with the office equipment. The computing system obtains information unrelated to operation of the office equipment and causes the office equipment to display the information in place of a status message.

TOP SECRET - SOURCE CODE